The Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

Washington, D.C. 20505

31 March 1987

The Vice President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Enclosed is a copy of the DCI's Annual Report to the Congress for calendar year 1986. This is the eleventh such report prepared for the Congress as required by Senate Resolution 400 and House Resolution 658. [redacted]

25X1

This year's report again uses a review of world events as a context for discussing the contributions that intelligence makes to the nation's security. I have sought in the report to indicate the ways in which intelligence "makes a difference," and to assure the Congress that we are moving in a sound and sensible way to deal with the challenges of the future. For that reason the report echoes themes contained in the National Foreign Intelligence Strategy prepared in January 1986, and the Strategy Update that I completed and forwarded to the Congress earlier this year. [redacted]

25X1

The Annual Report points out the difficulty and complexity of the intelligence task, and provides a good sense of the breadth of requirements that the Intelligence Community must deal with. It also underscores the need for continued Congressional support if we are to continue providing the service the nation expects of us. [redacted]

Robert M. Gates
Acting Director
